PROFILE OF A FOUNDER IN LOVE WITH GOLF AND MONFERRATO

Born in Ferentino on the 31st March 1921, Glauco Lolli Ghetti got his degree in Pharmaceutical Chemistry at the University of Genoa in 1944. Taking a different career path, he first started off as a administration manager for the shipping company owned by his father-in-law, the senator Giovanni Battista Bibolini. In 1955 he started up Carboflotta (collier fleet) while in 1964 he created a new shipping company called Carbonavi. In 1966 he had the first ecological oil-tankers built with a double hull. In 1972 he bought NAI (Navigazione Alta Italia) reaching a fleet of about 50 ships. Apart from his carrier in the maritime sector and two mandates as President of the soccer team Unione Calcio Sampdoria from 1961 until 1965 and from 1974 until 1978, Glauco Lolli Ghetti dedicated a significant part of his life to golf, of which he was very fond of. He discovered the world of golf at Rapallo, at the end on the sixties, and became an able amateur player.

In that period, he bought Margara, a farmhouse close to Fubine Monferrato, and decided to use part of the land to build a practice course and two-holes. Those two holes – the present nr. 3 and nr. 9 of the Lolli Ghetti Course at Margara Golf Club – were the first draft of what today is considered to be one of the most important golf clubs in Italy. Years later he added 7 more holes to the previous 2 and in 1972 a 9-hole golf course was created. In 1974 Glauco Lolli Ghetti's first dream of an 18-hole golf course came true. In the nineties, he started to work on a new project to add 9 more holes. But Glauco Lolli Ghetti had an even greater idea in mind, in fact his ambition was for the Margara Golf Club to become one of the few Italian 36-hole golf clubs, a dream that was fulfilled after the year two thousand.
